Rockin in The Keys With Howard Livingston of the Mile Marker 24 Band

Maybe it's the sunshine or perhaps, it's the sand between your toes, but once you get to the Keys you find yourself right at home. And, you know you're having a great time when you've got soulful music, and dear friends to share the moment as we did on our recent trip.

It is here, in the Keys, where we spent the afternoon together our friends, Howard Livingston of the Mile Marker 24 Band, and his lovely wife, Cyndy. It was a perfect day with clear blue skies in the Summerland Key near Mile Maker 24, which is where he took his band's name.

Soon after arriving our gracious hosts brought out his guitar and revived up the outboard motor he uses to blend margaritas on-stage, and we sang along to fitting tune, "Blame It On The Margaritas!"

Howard Livingston & the Mile Marker 24 Band mix together a laid back Caribbean beat that you cannot help but dance to whenever you hear it! Even if the weather is overcast and gloomy here in Indiana, each time we play one of their CD's we find ourselves back in the Keys with the crystal blue ocean lapping at our ankles while we sip margaritas.

It's moments like this that make a trip memorable. These are the moments

Leroy & I, and our friends: Howard Livingston, Carolina, Christina, Neela and Lena!

Howard Livingston & The Mile Marker 24 capture in each song, and why their fans keep coming back for more!

Along with Howard Livingston, The Mile Marker 24 family includes the musical talent of Jason Miller, Dave Herzog, Hulber Gagliardini, and Leigh Maples. Each year the band performs around the Keys as they did in Key West at the Parrotheads MOTM Margaritaville Street Fest on Duval and Fleming Streets in early November.

This is just one of the festive concerts scheduled for the band that get the crowds movin to a island beat. Check out the bands website at www.milemarker24.com for concert dates or to order one of their CD's click on the covers or listen to them here.
